Program

Bob Rowe, Principal of King Middle School educated us about the Oceanside School System.

Before becoming principal at King Middle School, he was principal at North Terrace Elementary School.

He told us about the tremendous improvements that were made at both schools in the last few years.

Students from all socio-economic groups have shown a big increase in their scores on the standardized tests

He told about how they used to have all the students in the quad at the same time; however, he opened up the campus so they can roam. Essentially, the method to his method was to split up the size of the student body in one location to decrease the possibility of trouble happening when a large group is together in one area.
